Functional Language

The new ECPE Speaking Test has been designed to elicit spoken language representative of Level C2 of the CEFR. Candidates work in pairs to complete a decision-making task.

In the new ECPE Speaking Test candidates are evaluated in three main areas:

- Discourse and Interaction (Development, Functional Range, and Listening Comprehension)
- Linguistic Resources (Range and Accuracy)
- Delivery and Intelligibility

This booklet provides candidates with a useful list of functional language that they will need to display throughout the Speaking Test. However, candidates need to be cautioned that they also need to use the functional language correctly and appropriately and to pay attention to what language follows such expressions. The guidelines at the end of this booklet describe how candidates should conduct themselves during the Speaking Test.
